Course leaders comments

We had 18 students this year and 15 answered the written course evaluation. The answers are in line with the comments given at the oral course evaluation.

The students' overall impression of the course was high and the teachers are also satisfied with the course. It is an intensive course with many different course moments and several deadlines but this year the students managed to follow the schedule and their presence on lectures was higher than last year. The wide range in students' prerequisites is a challenge for both teachers and course fellow students. The quiz that we introduced this year was a good idea and it will be developed to a web-based quiz next year, as recommended by the students. Some students would need more lectures, especially about genetic methods. We had added a basic lecture on molecular genetics this year and will expand it next year. We will also try to make a kind of 'guide' describing what method to use for what purpose and relate to lectures and course literature.

The individual project, where the students write a research application, was appreciated. The students want to see an example of an application before starting the project, but we are hesitating. An article about how to write a winning application will be added to the course list. We will remind the supervisors about giving feedback in time. The two days of presentations went very well this year and the students had many questions on other students' projects. This was a happy surprise since the students were pretty quiet during lectures.

The students liked the structure of the group work, changing cases between three steps. Last year it was suggested that the next group continues on the report of the previous group, resulting in one report per case describing all three steps. This new way of creating the report worked well. The students want an additional check point at each step, but we are not sure that is needed. The instructions, especially the questions for each case at each step, will however be improved.

The computer exercises are challenging for some of the students but most students agree that they are an important part of the course. The students really appreciate that several teachers are present at the exercise. Again IT service had not done their job. This is extremely frustrating for students and teachers. IT service must check that the programs used in the computer exercises work for the students in the computer room. It would be good to do the exercise in R instead of SAS, but we are not sure we will make this change already next year. We will book a larger room (one computer per student) for the computer exercises next year. The written feedback on the computer exercise reports should come earlier too enhance the learning.

The schedule worked well this year, but the students prefer to start at 9.15 in the mornings and the schedule will be changed accordingly next year. We should also remember to book rooms suitable for group discussions for the check points.

Student representatives comments

The course is really good, with the exception of a few small points that were addressed by the students in the course evaluation. The main ones I retain are:

1. The connection between the lecture to make a whole are not always clear finding a way to improve it for the next years would be nice.
2. A slightly more in-depth explanation of SAS or the use of R would help the realisation of the computer exercise.
3. Having a second checkpoint in the group work would help, especially for the step2
4. The supervisors for the individual project don't always send the comments of the draft on time! trying to ensure some kind of work time equity for all student would make the individual project close to perfect

The most positive things about this course that I want to be kept in the next years are:

1. The variety of works (group, individual, the test) and the diversity of teacher make it pleasant to follow and avoid the potential repetitive side of the course
2. With enough work and willingness from the student, we can learn a lot about animal genetics, health, welfare, breeding even without much prior knowledge
3. The overall spirit of the whole classes more about learning/teaching than grading.

The course is good with some little adjustment it could become amazing
