I have been really impressed with the way the course has been organised and run throughout, especially the transition to the online platform. Robert and Ida have been very good at responding to emails and shown very good flexibility for students in difficult circumstances.

The content of the course was very diverse and practical. This was reflected in the examination of seminars, where everything was focused around a practical task which followed on from a lecture the previous week. The makeup assignments were also practical in this way and required a holistic understanding of the topic rather than just answering basic questions from a textbook. All speakers were very motivated and engaging, a hard task on a dark Tuesday evening. During class, there was always a good discussion between students from a variety of backgrounds which helped create the student-led education that the course is aiming for.

I was very impressed with how this continued online during corona. Because of my living arrangement, I was not able to still actively participate from home, but after speaking with other students I know they still thoroughly enjoyed this active aspect. Not only were the online zoom classes greatly appreciated, but the consistency and quality of resources uploaded for those who did not attend the classes were also really good. From the content you currently have, it may be an option to make a completely online course to attract more student and grow the SLU/CEMUS online course portfolio.

Overall I have found this to be a great introductory course for a complete Newby like myself - I think this is reflected by other in the class who were from a wide variety of different backgrounds - both academic and those with an interest to just know more. The level of difficulty in content and assessment method made it accessible for all and the breadth of content was great as it provided something for everyone.

((Robert has spoken to me about generating better links with CEMUS, I am currently a course coordinator there and will be beginning the Environmental Communication and Management masters next month. I would be more than happy to work with strengthening these links over the next few years when I continue studying as SLU.))
