Student representatives comments

The course "Marketing, Responsibility, and Ethics offers insights on how to combine Marketing with sustainable action in an organization. Lectures and seminars helped to understand the concepts of responsible Marketing and prepared for the exam, even though the level of the exam was quite higher than of the assignments during the course. Sometimes, the organization of the course seemed to be a bit chaotic and feedback towards individual performance was missing. The information flow between the teacher and the students could have been better. However, the course contents were introduced clearly.
