The online preparation course Working with local natural resource management in low-income countries was a well structured course which made it easy to follow despite its solely online format. Out of 13 participants only four filled in the evaluation which was mostly very positive. The structure was well thought through and learning new skills and getting a better understanding by going through a real case study created a good learning environment. It was good to work together in a group which enabled the students to share ideas, challenge each other and get to know different perspectives. However, some more interactions with other groups or with the lecturers for example in seminars would be very beneficial.
