Student comments

“To give these courses (LU0085 and LU0090) is a constant learning process. The idea is both to teach students about main theories of social science and how to use them in practice, that is to theorize. One negative aspect, pointed out by several students, is that all seminars this semester were run on Zoom. This will hopefully not be the case next semester, and having more seminars live also enable the teachers to interact better with the students. Our intention is to put even more focus on the practical aspects, that is on theorizing and on strengthening the students' understanding of the interdependence between theories and methods.”
